Support Local Authors at the Spring Local Author Showcase!

Support your local authors! On Sunday, May 19 from 3:30-5:30 pm, four local authors will be at the Central-Clemson Library ready to meet local readers, talk about their work, and sell their books! All are invited to browse books from a variety of genres and subjects, ask the authors questions, and have books signed.

Don't miss this celebration of local talent featuring:

Elaine Cameron: Author of Hot Coffee and Cold Pizza: Musings from the Past and Present, a collection of humorous essays about how life in the South used to be so simple.

Mary Taylor Martof: Author of Alice's Story: A Search for Light, the haunting story of a nurse who turns to drugs to numb her pain, but eventually finds her inner light.

Lulu Rivera: Author of several books on encouraging and educating women on partnerships, parenting, healing, and righteous womanhood: Purposed for Womanhood, Building Yourself Up, and How to Heal From His Affair.

Allison Wells: Author of War-Torn Heart, a story of hope, love, and perseverance set in rural South Carolina during WWII.

Admission is free and all are welcome. If you plan to buy books, please note that some authors may only be able to accept cash. For more information, call the library at 639-2711.
